We began the summer with the departure of the Clipper on her annual voyage. Some of us went with her to explore new places; some of us remained on campus to continue our book learning; many of us went our separate ways for the summer to relax, work, or expand our learning at other institutions; a few of us achieved one goal by graduating from TAMUG and set out to look for new ones. No matter where we were, we saw new faces, made new friends, encountered new challenges, and gained new experience as we all progressed a little closer to our respective goals.

Summer drifted slowly by. As usual, there were good times, bad times, and mediocre times. For the Clipper's sailors, there were ports such as New Orleans and Amsterdam to party in, there were endless days at sea and excessive smoke stack emissions, and then there was the everyday maintenance of the ship to tend to. The students on campus had the beach parties and dancing, tedious days and nights with a textbook or a microscope, and afternoons at the pool. The working students found freedom from worrying about homework coupled with the sometimes monotonous daily routines of a full-time job. As we each went about our business, the days passed.

With the return of the Clipper, summer faded into fall . . .

Increased activity around campus signaled the arrival of the Fall semester. Old friends were brought together once again, while new friends were brought together for the first time. As TAMUG celebrated its 10th year, there were books to be purchased, schedules to change, projects to think about, football games to attend, parties to go to, studying to do, diplomas to look forward to. Spirits were dampened when four of our comrades were involved in a serious boating accident and we all realized how precious our friendships are. As the semester drew to a close and finals loomed threateningly before us, we still found time for a bit of holiday spirit, manifested in the form of decorated trees and doors. With finals over and Christmas just around the corner, we all settled down for a short winter's nap to recuperate for the Spring semester.

The Bolivar Point parties helped many a depressed student leave their worries behind.

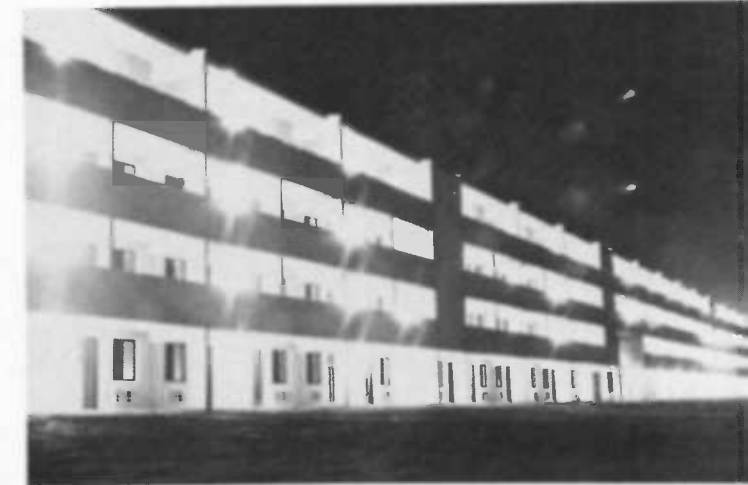

Rested up from the break, we flocked back to Pelican Island for the Spring semester once again. There was the usual turnover of students as well as the usual partying, studying, loafing, etc. Students seemed to take a little more interest in the operation of the school as the Channel Chatter, under the editorship of Karen Bruce and Peter Ravella, encouraged students and faculty alike to express their opinions on controversial issues. Spring break brought momentary relief from schoolwork and allowed the Clipper to receive a new coat of paint in preparation for summer cruise. And guess what?? The new dorm was finally completed! Aggie Muster brought all the Galveston area Ags together for an evening of memories and also brought home to seniors that graduation (and the ever-present finals) was close at hand. Convocation and graduation brought the eventful year to a close.

TAMUG CELEBRATES 10 ACTIVE

Friday, October 23, 1981, marked the tenth anniversary of Texas A&M University at Galveston. The Chamber of Commerce and the City of Galveston awarded a plaque and a certificate to TAMUG in honor of the event.

The TAMU Board of Regents, Chancellor W. R. Hubert, and TAMU President Dr. Frank E. Vandiver were among the visitors to TAMUG for the occasion. The weekend's festivities included a meeting of the faculty with President Vandiver on Friday with a reception and dinner sponsored by the City of Galveston and the Chamber of Commerce following. At the dinner, Dr. Wm. H. Clayton, TAMUG president, accepted the plaque on behalf of the University. The TAMU Singing Cadets provided after-dinner entertainment with a free concert that was open to everyone. On Saturday, campus tours and the Rice Game were scheduled. A picnic at Car-bide Park highlighted Sunday's activities and concluded the anniversary celebration.

 - gorging on banana splits in the cafeteria
 - lounging by the pool on a lazy afternoon
 - staying up through the wee morning hours, identifying the specimens we collected in the field
 - enjoying good company around the bonfire at a beach party
 - dancing the night away at 12th Street, Bohickey's, or Bob's

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

S.A.C.

The Student Advisory Committee (S.A.C.) is responsible for relaying the needs and requests of the students to the Administration. Students who feel something around campus should be changed or instigated can present their proposals to S.A.C., who will then discuss them and present the feasible ones to the Administration. This year's committee presented such proposals as the installation of drainage ditches around campus and the designation of several classrooms to be left open for study purposes.

The S.A.C. prepares for upcoming elections.

Amy Brown (JR; secretary), Lori Guthrie (SR; chairman), Lenny Leyendecker (SOPH), Skeeter Braun (FR/LO), David Byrnes (SOPH/LO), Tony Marraro (SR/LO; V. chairman). Not shown: Bobby Hedderman (FR), Mary Hancock (JR/LO)

J-Board members aren't always laying down the law as these two members (Dave Plawsky, Charles Marks) amply demonstrate

JUDICIAL BOARD

The student Judicial Board (J-Board) is a committee of students, elected by the student body, charged with handling infractions of rules and regs. Students accused of violating a campus regulation are given the opportunity to plead their case before the J-Board, who determines guilt or innocence and takes appropriate action.

Many a student struggled through long nights in the computer room just like these guys are doing! 'This class obviously wasn't too dull.

CLASSES, CLASSES, CLASSES

Classes make up the largest part of a student's life. They provide a foundation on which students can build their education. There are good ones, bad ones, big ones, small ones, fun ones, and dull ones. TAMUG's students have an advantage over many schools because of the small classes (then again, there are those that never make!) This year, TAMUG offered several new courses, including Physical Measurements, Fisheries Populations, Politics of Energy, and others.

Hey, Nancy! What's the name of that bug? Nancy Tuit and Charlene Hons.

Four hours a week for one hour of lab credit-even in college, that's slave labor! Physics labs provided our weekly dosage of radioactivity, while we blew up our way through Organic. Finally, our ever-clumsy freshmen learned the fine art of breaking (and washing) dishes. And honorable mention goes to the B-2 Radar Lab for serving the only unknown that's 100 proof.

CORPS ACTIVITIES

Those students wishing to obtain a license must join the Corps of Cadets. The Corps participates in several different activities. In addition to the basic curriculum, corps students must also take such courses as navigation, life boat techniques, fire fighting, etc. They must also attend formation each day and assist in the maintenance of the Clipper. Optional activities include the drill team and demonstrations such as the helicopter demo by the Coast Guard. A new aspect of the Corps this year was the formation of individual companies.

ON-CAMPUS

Although TAMUG does not have the abundance of recreational equipment many schools have, there were many activities available to students who needed a break from studies. Intramural sports, frisbee, swimming, and tennis provided physical exercise while T.V., pool, ping-pong, and weekly movies were available for the less physically inclined. In addition to regular entertainment, several performances such as singers and dance groups were sponsored by various organizations on campus.

SPACE/DANCE/THEATRE

TAMUG Aggies got a taste of culture on campus this Fall when the SPACE/DANCE/THEATRE performed in the CLB Auditorium. The Houston based dance company concentrates on fully utilizing whatever space is available to perform in; they contend that any space is dance space. The four members of the company who performed at TAMUG certainly exemplified the truth in their theory by giving an excellent performance on a very small stage with a low ceiling. The group performed a variety of numbers, including folk dances, ballet, and modern dance.

The performance was financed by a grant from the Moody Foundation, which allowed the group to perform all over Galveston. The TAMUG Women's Club was responsible for inviting the group to TAMUG. Following the performance, the Women's Club served refreshments, giving the audience a chance to chat with the dancers.

ENTERTAINMENT

Sometimes (often?!) Pelican Island had a way of getting a person down in spite of available entertainment on campus. Then students had to journey over the causeway to "Sunny Galveston Island." There they found entertainment in sports on the beach, parties, local clubs, roller skating on the seawall, movies, and plays. If Galveston wasn't exciting enough, there was always Houston . . .

Top left: We're not sure exactly what they've been doing at this party, but Ted McKelvey and Debbie Ragan seem to be enjoying whatever it was!

HALLOWEEN

On Halloween TAMUG students indulged in spaghetti and fun at Sea Wolf Park. The more creative students entered the costume contest; others, craving mystery, joined forces in a treasure hunt. Those who considered themselves handy with a knife paired off and carved jack-o-lanterns to their hearts' delight. During the carving session, several of our illustrious peers engaged in a rowdy (and messy) round of throwing pumpkin remains. After gathering pumpkin seeds left by the carvers, some of our "good ol' boys" demonstrated their seed spitting skills. The evening of activities, co-sponsored by the Dorm Association and Student Activities (with Randy Carr as the driving force, naturally), had only a moderate turnout, but those who came had a good time. The meal was served by Jim Newlin and company. Following the contests, almost everyone pitched in to help clean up the pavillion.

Elizabeth Scott - 2nd place, costume contest.

CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR'S

Despite the gloomy weather that prevailed, TAMUG Aggies still showed they had the holiday spirit. Decorated Christmas trees were put in the N.S.C. lobby and in the C.L.B., as well as in the dorms. Mysterious midnight marauders were discovered one night "borrowing" ornaments from the B-3 Christmas tree, seems the "B-2 Boys" thought they looked better on their tree . . . Christmas parties were held in several departments to celebrate the season. 1982 was welcomed by parties and, uh, various other ways.

VALENTINE DANCE

Those who didn't have a date to the Saint Valentine's Day festivities weren't looking very hard. The Channel Chatter carried announcements of eligible young ladies looking for escorts, while Randy Carr offered a free dating service to anyone interested. TAMUG students and faculty celebrated the big day with a dance at the gazebo in Kempner Park. Sweethearts and friends danced to a variety of music provided by a hired disc jockey. Everyone "dressed to the hilt" for the affair and the Dorm Association rose to the occasion by adding the final decorative touches to a naturally romantic setting.

NATIONAL DEFENSE CONFERENCE

February 5-6 provided the chance for a group of TAMUG Aggies to eat fine food, dress up in their fanciest duds, and get a good dose of high-level politics. Mrs. Mary Moody Northern donated twenty-five tickets to TAMUG for the "National Conference of the Defense of America: From Assured Destruction to Assured Survival" which were distributed to students on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The twenty-five Ags dressed semi-formally for the opening dinner at the Hotel Galvez, Friday evening. After steaks and baked potatoes, several speakers were heard; among them were Senator Jesse Helms (R-N.C.) and Congressman John Le Boutillier (R-N.Y.). On Saturday, students could attend any of ten different talks, all dealing with the state of the U.S. defense. A complimentary luncheon was included and the conference ended that night with a dinner at the Flagship Hotel.

One of the final steps in the successful completion of every student's college career is Convocation. At the ceremony, held at TAMUG, each graduate present at the ceremony was recognized. This year's graduating class totaled 150. This year's speaker was Gov. William Hobby Jr. In addition to the speaker's presentation, a number of awards were presented to students who had made above average achievements during their academic careers. The Most Effective Teacher Award was also presented (cont'd) at Convocation. This year's recipient, chosen by the student body, was Capt. Robert Freehill. Following the ceremony, guests were given the opportunity to visit with the students and faculty while enjoying the refreshments provided by the A&M Mothers Club. For the final step that all students dream of, the day when they have diploma in hand, they must make the "pilgrimage" to College Station, where they participate in the ceremony with their fellow Aggies from the main campus.

Please lord, just eight more touchdowns.

ORGANIZATIONS NIGHT

TAMUG clubs got together on Organizations Night, held at the Coast Guard station in Galveston, to enlist members, both old and new. In addition to the old clubs, a couple of new clubs appeared on the scene (B-2 and Sports Car) trying to recruit enough members to make a go of it. Each club set up a booth and either demonstrated the club's activities or informed students of plans for the year. Since most of TAMUG's clubs were represented, there was a wide variety of topics available, enabling students to pursue their major interests. The event was sponsored by Student Activities and except for one small mishap (the theft, and later return, of an American flag belonging to the Coast Guard) went smoothly.

DORM ASSOCIATION

The Dorm Association is a social club designed to provide its members with entertainment. The club got off to a slow start this year when all but one of its elected officers moved off campus, thus becoming ineligible for office. With a very depleted budget, the hastily elected officers helped serve at the 10th Anniversary Picnic, for which they received a donation to the Dorm Association. The Fall members also co-sponsored the Halloween Party. Officers were again elected in the Spring. Included in the Spring activities were the 2nd Annual Tropical Evening Paradise and the Valentine Dance.

TAMUG DISC CLUB

a) Martin Milliken b) Jack Longstreet c) John Patin d) Eddie Lewis e) David Sanchez-Navarro f) Rick Bott g) Bill Ruefle

The TAMUG Frisbee Disc Association, presently known as the Granfallons (a meaningless association of human beings), formerly known as Reggae Mylitis, was active in various frisbee events throughout the year. They played Ultimate frisbee on a weekly basis, sponsored a frisbee golf (folf) tournament, completed in the Houston Area Ultimate Tournament, and several members competed in the Frisbee Players Association Texas-World Freestyle Championships.

A combination of surfers, punkers, sailors, frisbee freaks, a few normal people, and one bozo faculty member known as Moose, the Granfallons provided some of the best times to be had on Galveston Island. "World Peace Through Frisbee" is their motto and Ultimate is their game.

TAMUG ROWING CLUB

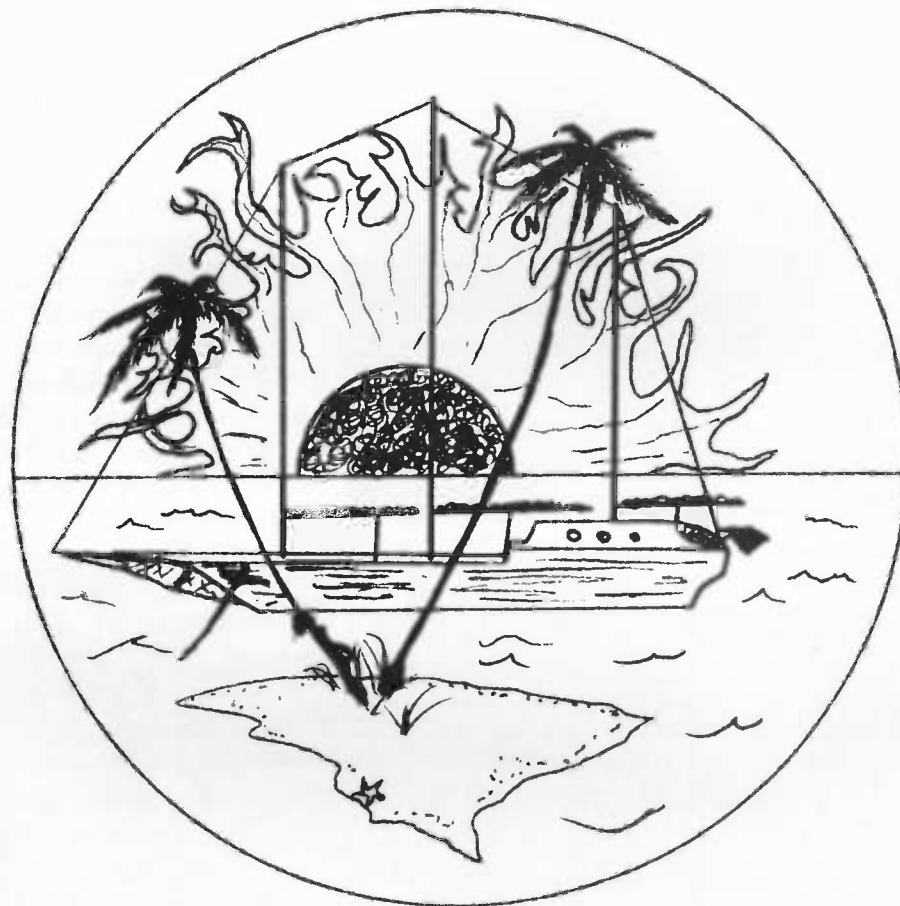

The rowing club was a new organization on campus this year. Organized by a group of students interested in recreational and competitive rowing, the club was accepted into the United States Rowing Assoc. In addition to physical conditioning of the members, the first goal was to raise funds for the purchase of equipment. One such activity was the chili dinner held at the Paladin Club in Galveston. Secondary goals included training members in the sport of rowing and the entry of a team in rowing competition.

SEASPRAY

People in the University community who like to create publish their work — poetry, prose, and drawings — in Seaspray. The magazine has appeared each spring since it was founded in 1976: this makes it the youngest of the student publications.

Like the other two publications, the Voyager and Channel Chatter, Seaspray fills a need for a special kind of communication between people. The year-book captures memories; the newspaper reports news; the literary magazine provides a forum for art.

Cindi Rios, the managing editor, collected manuscripts and designed the magazines' layout. Scott Watkins, the art editor, illustrated the words and arranged the drawings in the magazine. Dr. Stephen Curley, the faculty sponsor, offered advice to the staff.

Cindi Rios and Dr. Curley examine the 1982 Seaspray.

CHANNEL CHATTER

THE STUDENT NEWSPAPER OF TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY AT GALVESTON

The school newspaper, known as Channel Chatter, took big steps towards becoming the voice of the students this year. The staff delivered many well written articles aimed at various aspects of campus life which warranted attention. New features of the paper included spot-light interviews with TAMUG faculty, Mainten-aint's, and increased letters to the editor.

The girls show who the real bosses are by making "monkeys" out of the guys! Top Row: Cheri Morris, Sonia Ralls, Kate Ransone, Karen Bruce. Bottom row: Pete Ravella, Marty Paul, Dr. Joseph Dawson

THE MAKING OF VOYAGER 1982

The making of the 1982 Voyager began with the theme (a progression of footprints up the beach from the water's edge to the horizon of the dunes, symbolizing man's progression through life and his continual endeavor to reach new horizons.) After six attempts, the cover photo and footprints for the division pages were finally accomplished. Several new features were added to the book this year, including an index and departmental faculty pictures. Near the end of the year, finals, papers, projects, and graduation activities took priority over yearbook production; however, a group of volunteers rallied at Bill Hearn's home to help finish the book.

Top left: Debbie Ragan clears the way for one of several attempts at making the footprints seen on the division pages.

Right: Late nights were a common occurrence during the course of the year.

T.A.M.E.C.T.

T.A.M.E.C.T. representative provides information about the organization to interested students at Organizations Night.

The Texas A&M Emergency Care Team is a group of volunteer students trained in the areas of CPR and basic first aid. They administer emergency care to victims of accidents (especially sports!) in need of immediate attention. The organization had to close their doors this Fall because of a lack of trained personnel. However, Spring brought renewed interest in the club and training sessions were initiated once again.

A&M MOTHERS & TAMUG WOMEN

There are some organizations around campus that are not school sponsored, but still support the university and students. Two such organizations are the Galveston Island A&M Mothers Club and the TAMUG Women's Club. Each year, the Mothers Club presents an award to the female student who has done the most to improve student life on campus. This year, they also donated approximately $600.00 for special activities and provided refreshments for Convocation and Aggie Muster. The Women's Club was responsible for setting up the student check cashing fund. They also sponsored programs such as the Space/Dance/Theatre, a self-protection seminar, and periodic teas. Both of these groups deserve a lot of credit for their contributions to the students of TAMUG.

IN MEMORY

ETHAN DUCAT
MASE

Many of us have a lot of memories of Ethan Ducat. Most are pleasant, a few are not; hopefully, the ones we remember best will be the pleasant ones.

He was a very unique individual and I learned quite a bit from him. College wouldn't have been the same without him and I'm very glad to have known him.

Many things remind me of Ethan . . .

When I see or talk to certain friends, I think of him.

When I play football or go to a party, I think of him.

When I drink rum or go carousing, I think of him.

When I ride a motorcycle or play Dungeons and Dragons, I think of him.

When I watch "Animal House" or "Caddy Shack," I think of him.

When I shoot a pistol or sharpen a knife, I think of him.

It saddens me that Ethan took so many hard knocks in life, but then I remember how carefree he was through it all, and I have to smile again. Since he didn't let it get him down, how can I let it bother me?

I remember the good times and the bad, the happy and the sad.

Yes, I remember . . .

Editor's Note

Well Ags . . . it's been real and it's been fun; but I can't honestly say that it's always been just real fun! Seriously, there are some very special people that were instrumental in bringing you the 1982 Voyager. This page is dedicated to them. At the head of the list is David Villegas, who is not only responsible for the time and talent behind at least 80% of the pictures in this book, including the cover, but also for keeping me sane (let's hear it for those scotch and vodka talks!) A big thank you also goes to Dave Plawsky, who put up with me through it all and also assisted with photography (including the cover.) The Student Affairs gang (Bev, Bill, Julie, Randy) also deserves a lot of credit for helping out with all those many miscellaneous little problems. My roommate and friend, Patti McElhaney, gets a round of applause for acting as courier of the proofs and for good-naturedly controlling the urge to "get even" for a couple of pictures in this book (I hope!) I would also like to thank all the people who donated pictures and/or came to the "caption party;" they're too numerous to list. That about wraps up the thank yous. I hope you enjoy the book in spite of its late arrival. I have one last sentiment to express . . .

WHOOOP!!
